

Fiction Author Profile – Worksheet

1. In what genres or categories do you write?
2. Let's focus on the primary genre/category you write in. What appeals to you most about this genre/category?
3. List 3 things you'd like your books to be known for.
4. Now, let's consider the characters in your stories. Choose one of your favorites and tell why you enjoyed writing this character.

- A What-To Course for Author Newsletters, 2019 ©Heather K. Duff | newslettercraft.com

9. PAUSE AND REFLECT: Your answer to #7 tells you something about how people are perceiving you (or your BRAND). Is this hitting the mark for you? Does this match up with what you want to be known for or recognized as? Explain below.

10. KEEP THE PAUSE BUTTON ON: Your answer to #8 reveals something about your personal VALUES. “Meaningful” feedback touches on the things you most care about. For instance, people may commonly say that your books keep them guessing until the last page. THEY value your skill in weaving an intricate plot. While you appreciate these comments, your most meaningful feedback might be from a teenager who said your writing inspired her to enter a short story in a contest. Read again your answer for #8. Why do you think this meant so much to you? Explain below.